A: You've got a library called nLite that is being created in a child process. That doesn't sound good, and you can't run it. On windows 8 anyway nLite is the main process (child) that does all it's work. Q: jQuery: removeAll() clears attribute from all children elements I'm using the following code to remove a when I click on a button: $('#remove').click(function(){ $('.card-info').remove(); $('.card-info').removeAttr('id'); }); The problem is that.card-info will clear all it's children and remove the id attribute too. I tried to have a boolean value to check if.card-info has children (if(jQuery('.card-info').children().length > 0)) but even if I set it to true and set the value to false after the code runs, the boolean still evaluates to true (and it also returns true when set to false). Any ideas? A: The problem with your boolean solution is that when you remove the element from the DOM, it has no children. So if you assign it to true, then it is true. If you assign it to false, then it is false. Have a look at the jQuery docs for the.children selector. In your case, you only want to keep track of those elements that have children. So, you should use.filter. This will return an array of elements that match the selector. $('.card-info').filter(function() { return jQuery(this).children().length > 0; }).remove(); Preventive Coaching PRODUCTS Pipeline Coaching, Mental Coaching, or even Peer Coaching are very effective and affordable ways to "affirm" your existence in this reality. I would like to know what difference it makes if I enable this feature in the privacy settings. Will it improve the accuracy of my Assistant or any other impact? Thanks. A: Based on my personal experience as an early adopter, there's no tangible difference. Personally, I have had zero call or missed call results from the application in the past few months. It's a "Hey Google, What's up?", but answers are always accurate. Q: Terraform - Delete a file created by s3 module if it exists and if it doesn't, create it I have an s3 module with extra_hostname, extra_hostname_query in s3_file.
