Translation tool: easy to translate front theme and admin panel to your language.Q: how do I transfer html code to a string I created a function that reads a text file and saves it on a string. function getstring() { $this->loadFile($config['path']); if (file_exists($this->txt)) { $content = file_get_contents($this->txt); file_put_contents($this->txt, $content); return($content); } return(''); } But when I do this in a while loop $content = getstring(); while ($it->fetch() == true) { $child = $it->child('site'); echo $content; $content = getstring(); } it displays the first result, the website. What do I do wrong? How do I get the save function to save the string content for every result while loop? A: There is a problem in your code. You need to clear the string before every iteration, use $content = ''; while ($it->fetch() == true) { instead of $content = getstring(); in your while loop. I am pretty sure your code will work then. Get breaking news alerts and special reports. The news and stories that matter, delivered weekday mornings. A Russian lawyer who has been connected to President Donald Trump's team of "volunteer defenders" of Donald Trump Jr. made an appearance in federal court on Tuesday.
